Pumpernickels has an eclectic, country style that uses simple honest materials. Working across the basement, ground and mezzanine floors, a strong sense of individuality and variety has been created using different furnishings, wallpapers and lighting. The result is a place where customers feel comfortable and happy to spend time and money in.

By reclaiming found materials on site such as the mouldings around disused doorways, uncovering brickwork or creating similar features. These sites acquired a nostalgic lived in feel which lent a sense of ease and comfort. This approach was accentuated By using several wall papers in the same space as if old layers had been striped back, and by using a variety of lamp shades.
